Modi stressed on his Swachh Bharat Abhiyaan and said that Indians do not have the right to chant Vande Mataram if they go on to spit paan and throw garbage on roads. "As I entered, I heard people chanting loudly 'Vande Mataram, Vande Mataram!'... The value of patriotism fills my heart. But do we have the right to say Vande Mataram?" Modi said.

He said those who chant Vande Mataram go and litter roads. "Whether we clean the roads or not, we do not have the right to litter our motherland," he added.

PM Modi was speaking to mark the 125th anniversary of Swami Vivekananda's Chicago address and centenary celebrations of Deendayal Upadhyaya.

Speaking about Swami Vivekananda's address at Parliament of Religions in Chicago on Sept.11, 1893, PM Modi said people in India remember 9/11 of 2001. "Today is 9/11...this day became widely spoken about after 2001 but there was another 9/11 of 1893 which we remember. Just with a few words, a youngster from India won over the world and showed the world the power of oneness," the PM said and appealed the youth to build toilets first before building temples. "Swami Vivekananda said that only rituals will not connect an individual to divinity...'Jan Seva is Prabhu Seva'."

Gorillas in the Government

The incumbent government's leading lights at the Centre opened their five-year innings in May 2014 with the slogan "Less government, More governance" generating hopes of achhe din (good days) sooner than later. The three-plus years of the period following that event have witnessed disturbing incidents in open spaces across the land, Karnataka figuring in them like never before, sending the administration in the State into a tizzy as it were. Unfazed by the all-too-familiar ungratifying public scenario in the region, as copiously reported upon day after day by the media, the top brass has widely advertised that more than 90 percent of whatever was promised during the poll campaigns by the ruling party before assuming office four-plus years ago have been fulfilled leaving some of the different sections amused or astonished or satisfied and the rest dismayed. The nation has seen this sequence of assurance and awaiting disenchantment for seven decades so far.

Criticising the actions and policies of the government in a democracy, as the practice adopted by citizens in some circles, has tended to sound a great deal harsh in words, inviting different styles of reaction from various quarters. Journalists, pursuing their rightful duty of keeping citizens informed, particularly without taking sides, are getting caught in the crossfire. Moderates in the land have virtually lost their voice and place in society.

The land's people are being prepared for making way to digital financial transactions, big as well as small, and also reduced paperwork in the offices of the government. One has to wait with fingers crossed until the day of success in the just unleashed measure given the low rate of digital literacy in the land's population. The governments both at the Centre and in the 36 States and Union Territories already are manned by an army of staff, numerically many times than that of the nation's army. A quote by Cyril Northcote Parkinson (1909-1993), the British author, considered as an important scholar in public administration and management, namely, "The man whose life is devoted to paperwork has lost the initiative. He is dealing with things that are brought to his notice, having ceased to notice anything for himself," eminently suits the land's bureaucrats.

Citizens at large are most unwelcome in any government office in the land, understandably except where the deal between the intruder and the babu has unmistakable prospect of free and instant flow of cash from the willingly giving side to the eagerly receiving side, obviously below the table. In all other cases, the citizen is perceived as a virtual gorilla in the babudom, disturbing well-earned tranquillity.

EDITOR'S BOTTOMLINE

The good thing about being in a small town is that you hardly need to go to the market for vegetable, fruit, bread or fish purchase. Almost all vendors come to your door. And since no one is in a tearing hurry, unlike in a city, much talk is exchanged over transactions. How are people at home? Were the rains enough this year? When our vegetable vendor was facing a challenge with helping his daughter with her schoolwork it was natural for him to seek our advice. What he wanted was for us to coach his daughter who was then in Class VII. We agreed although the poor child had to cycle almost 5 km in the morning to avail our tuitions at seven in the morning. After an hour of intense English or Maths she had to cycle back in order to be able to reach school on time. To her credit, she kept this up for almost two years. We realised it was probably because she was too young for her class. We advised her father to let her repeat a year, which we thought would be beneficial in the long run. In a family of modest means, maybe such advice was hard to pay heed to.

White wine tastes like beer!

Brussels: Having trouble deciding between white wine and beer? Thanks to artisan wine maker in Belgium, you can now have both in the same bottle.

49-year-old Filip Decroix, an experienced winemaker from Ypres, has spent the last year trying to perfect the formula for his "Steenstraetse Hoppewijn," a sparkling white wine with a beer-like bitterness created by combining Chardonnay with Belgian hops.

Decroix claims that he set out to create a wine that Belgians, known mostly for their beer, would appreciate and after having it tested by expert sommeliers, he is sure it will be a big hit.

Getting the combination of white wine and hops just right was a complicated and expensive process that cost Decroix many liters of Chardonnay. He conducted countless experiments, with various quantities of added hops, and learned that details like the temperature and ripening time of the hops greatly influenced the taste of the drink. In April, he finally got the recipe just right, and has since had experts try his hop wine and provide their input.

House turns into a road!

Moscow: A family of migrant workers from Russia's Nizhny Novgorod region, recently returned to their native village of Zavod after a month of work to find their house partially demolished and an asphalt road passing through their property.

The Udalov family spend most of their time away from home, working in the nearby city of Nizhny Novgorod. Unfortunately, after authorities took the liberty to tear down part of it in order to make room for an asphalt road. No one contacted them about the project, so they just came back after a month to a partially demolished house and their belongings spread on the side of the new road traversing their yard. Valeria Udalov and her husband recently made news headlines, after placing wooden barriers on the new road and blocking traffic, as the section in front of their home it is technically private property. They even camped on the road. Vowed to keep blocking the road until authorities take responsibility and offer them compensation for damages caused.

Illegal manhole work at Saraswathipuram Swimming Pool premises

Former Mayor Lingappa visits spot; JCB confiscated

Mysuru, Sept.11 (SBD&NNN)- Manual scavenging is a caste-based occupation involving the removal of untreated human excreta from bucket toilets or pit latrines, that has been officially abolished by Law in India as a dehumanising practice.

This inhuman practice still persists and the helpless Pourakarmikas are forced to enter manholes to clean them. One more such incident has come to light in Saraswathipuram near the Swimming Pool premises in the city, where a worker had been entrusted the task of cleaning a manhole.

It may be recalled that a couple of months ago in Chamundi Hill's Tavarakatte village a Pourakarmika was forced to enter the manhole and clean it.

The works in the Swimming Pool that comes under the University of Mysore limits is in progress. An underground pipeline was being installed in this connection. During the course of the ongoing work, a worker entered the manhole to put a pipeline, it is said.

Hearing about the incident, the area Corporator and former Mayor R. Lingappa has reached the place only to find a person inside the manhole. Apart from this, the road has been dug up using a JCB.

Linganna has taken the person in charge of the work to task asking him whether he did not know that it is a crime to involve a person to enter the manhole and get the work done.

Also how he could dig up the road without permission from the Corporation.

Later, the Corporation officials were summoned to the spot and the JCB confiscated as it had damaged the road.

Lingappa told Star of Mysore that he had informed Corporation Commissioner G. Jagadeesha about the incident and asked him to take necessary action. However, Jagadish was not available for comments when he was approached by this newspaper.

Gurmeet Ram Rahim is a sex addict, claims doctor who examined him in jail

"He may not be drinking liquor now, but he regularly consumed energy drinks and sex tonics that were specially imported by him from Australia and other countries," claims a former Dera Member.

Rohtak (Haryana), Sept. 11- Jailed self-styled Godman Gurmeet Ram Rahim is not feeling well. Besides diabetes, the incarcerated Dera Sacha Sauda Chief has also reported feeling uneasy and restless to a team of doctors who examined him at a Rohtak Jail on Saturday.

It has been almost a fortnight since Gurmeet Ram Rahim Singh was lodged in the jail after being convicted of raping two female followers in a 15-year-old case. Jail authorities on Saturday called a team of doctors, including a Psychiatrist, in order to conduct a health check-up.

Sources say that the rapist Baba is not well since he left Dera. He is believed to have told the doctors that his problems are a type of withdrawal symptoms. "The Baba is in fact a sex addict. He has no access to the physical pleasures in the jail which is the basis of his restlessness. He can be treated, but if delayed, it can lead to a bigger problem," says a doctor, who was part of the team, requesting anonymity.

However, it remains unclear if Gurmeet Ram Rahim addicted to drugs as well. Photographs doing rounds on social media suggest that the Dera Chief consumed liquor until 1988. "He may not be drinking liquor now, but he regularly consumed energy drinks and sex tonics that were specially imported by him from Australia and other countries," claims Gurdas Singh Toor, a former Dera Member.

Ram Rahim told Court that he is impotent

Notably, Gurmeet Singh, who did not leave any stone unturned in order to prove himself innocent, once told the special CBI Court that ultimately convicted him that he was impotent and was physically incapable of performing sex.

He had also publicly announced in 1990, when he became the Dera Chief, that he had renounced his family and had nothing to do with the life or desires of an ordinary man.

Surprisingly, when an anonymous letter, accusing Ram Rahim of rape, written by one of the rape victims surfaced, he started telling people that the girls were under pressure to make false statements and that his opponents had bribed the victims.

"He is a liar as he was never impotent. His son was a few months old when he became a Dera Chief in 1990. He is accused of raping his disciples after 10 years. When people demanded his potency test, he retracted his 1990 statement and said he had physical relations with wife only. He wanted to deviate the investigations by telling the Court that he is impotent. Why nobody got his potency test done so far is another loophole," Gurdas Singh Toor, who appeared as a witness for the CBI, told a section of the Press.

Was the demand to allow Honeypreet to stay with him in jail to satiate physical needs?

Gurmeet Ram Rahim had requested the jail authorities to allow him to stay with Honeypreet, his closest aide. He had even reportedly, threatened the jail staff when Honeypreet was asked to leave the jail complex. Baba had told the jail authorities that Honey was his physiotherapist and he regularly require her massage.

Interestingly, Gurmeet Ram Rahim did not demand the presence of either a male attendant, his biological daughters, or even his wife. His only demand was that Honeypreet be allowed to enter the jail as his attendant.

When failed to meet Honeypreet in the jail, he even requested authorities to allow him to speak to her over phone. However, the Baba's hopes were dashed when Honeypreet, slapped with a sedition case, went underground.

'Long serving officials responsible for corruption in Education Department'

Vedike demands holding of Shikshana Adalat

Mysuru, Sept.11 (SP&DM)- Alleging that officials who served for long at one place were responsible for rampant corruption in the Education Department, the Karnataka Samajika Nyaya Rakshana Vedike has demanded immediate holding of Shikshana Adalat. Addressing a press meet here recently, Vedike State Convenor H. Lakkegowda alleged that Education Department officials were in favour of private educational institutions.

Maintaining that many Government Schools were on the verge of closure, he alleged that the officials have completely ignored the rule that Shikshana Adalat must be held once in three months to hear the grievances of teachers.

Pointing out that the Adalat was meant for correcting the lapses in the Department, Lakkegowda said that the officials had failed to hold the Adalat for six years.

Demanding immediate transfer of corrupt staff, he wanted the Government to take immediate measures for revamping the Education Department.

Advocate B. Radha, activists Dyavappa Nayaka, B.H. Govindegowda, J. Mayigowda and others were present during the press meet.

INTERVIEW

"Should we aspire to be like China is the bigger question"

Chief Economic Advisor to Government of India Arvind Subramanian

Economics is not an exact science. Few people understand it with words like GDP, fiscal policy, repo rate. For instance, demonetisation is claimed to be an unmitigated disaster as well as a resounding success. Arvind Subramanian, Chief Economic Advisor (CEA) to Government of India, was in city recently on the invitation of Desiraju Family to deliver a talk on "The Indian Economy: Some Issues," as part of the D.V. Narasimha Rao Lecture Series.

Star of Mysore* Features Editor N. Niranjan Nikam caught up with Subramanian during dinner at the CFTRI Swimming Pool after the lecture. In this breezy and brief interview, he talks about his role as CEA, Privatisation, Universal Basic Income and his optimism on Structural Reforms. Excerpts...

By N. Niranjan Nikam

Star of Mysore (SOM): The post of Chief Economic Advisor (CEA) was lying vacant for more than a year. You succeeded Raghuram Rajan who left under controversial circumstances. How has your experience been?

Arvind Subramanian: Raghu did not leave CEA.

SOM: No, not CEA, but Reserve Bank of India (RBI).

Arvind Subramanian: My experience, it is one of the greatest jobs. I am extremely privileged to give back something to the country. There is so much that can be done like policy outreach. I am extremely privileged to be a part of the Government to help largely in the economic policy.

SOM: Being one of India's most important Economists on Globalisation, you have said that the country will catch up with China in 20 or 30 years. But the gung ho mood in the Cabinet at the Centre and among the young Indians is, we could arrive in the next five or ten years?

Arvind Subramanian: (Smiles) See, a lot of it depends on what you mean by catching up and arrive. If you take up a simple number like per capita GDP, China's per capita GDP is 13,000 to 14,000 dollars while ours is at 6,000.

SOM: So, China's is more than double?

Arvind Subramanian: Yes, it is more than double. There is a lot of work to do to catch up with China. I think we will take some time before we catch up. In terms of how efficiently we deliver our public services, China is probably way ahead of us on that. We need to catch up on that as well. I think five to ten years thing is a bit ambitious. Of course, the bigger question is that should we aspire to be like China? And that is a different question. Many people feel that as long as we are domestically strong, people are happy, standards of living are rising, minimising conflict, providing health, education and essential services to all, it is fine. We should be focused inward, not outward. So, strength abroad, flows from strength at home first and foremost. I think as Vijay Kelkar famously said the best foreign policy is 10 per cent economic growth domestic. If we can achieve that then, automatically external benefits will follow.

SOM: Having spent your adult life abroad and after working with a US think-tank, how is it working with the Finance Department?

Arvind Subramanian: Oh, it is just extraordinary working in the government. My boss, Finance Minister Arun Jaitley, is someone who has just been extraordinary in giving my team and me the space, the support to do all that I want to do — analysis, speaking up, encouraging to be open. It is an extraordinary privilege to work with the Finance Minister. Same thing is true of my dealings with the Prime Minister's Office as well. I am encouraged to speak up and consulted on all kinds of policy issues. So, it has been an extraordinary experience.

SOM: You have called 'the file', the only system still in place in spite of the IT revolution, 'the beast.'

Arvind Subramanian: Yeah, Yeah.

SOM: Is there a way out of the time-tested system in government?

Arvind Subramanian: I think more and more files are being eliminated. In fact in my own Department, the Department of Economic Affairs, file is no longer used. It is being done electronically, we use e-office. So, file is soon going to be a thing of the past.

SOM: But still it is a long way to go, because, in most government offices the practice is still there.

Arvind Subramanian: I don't know, but I am told in Andhra Pradesh it is all done electronically. I think it varies from State to State. But certainly in the Central government, for example, in the Ministry of Human Resources Development it is all done electronically. We are aspiring for that as well in the Ministry of Finance. I think we are making a lot of progress.

SOM: People working in Public Sector companies like BEML and BSNL are worried about privatisation because that is what is happening now. As an Economist, what do you think is the road ahead?

Arvind Subramanian: The Government's policy, you know, the Prime Minister's famous line — 'minimum government, maximum governance'. Government should specialise in what it needs to do — which is to provide basic law and order, security, essential services, infrastructure and the private sector should do the rest. So, the message is clear. If the government is going to get out of certain activities, we have to plan to make sure that costs of exits are minimised and all stakeholders are consulted. At some point we have to have a clear sense of what is the government's role and what is the private sector's role.

SOM: Can you briefly share about Universal Basic Income (UBI), which you advocate for a country like ours?

Arvind Subramanian: If you read the Economic Survey that came out in February, it spells out the pros and cons; I think it has a lot of merit, which we discussed. But as the Finance Minister has always said we need to be sure that if we can afford it. Some estimates suggest that a reasonable Universal Basic Income is like 4, 5 per cent of GDP. We don't have the fiscal space. So the question is how do we find the fiscal space?

One promising way forward on this is not the Central government but some State governments take this up and then see how it works, learn from the experience of the States. The beauty about India is that all these experiments can be done at the Central level and also at the State level.

SOM: No, when you say Universal Basic Income, 4 per cent, 5 per cent GDP, as an Economist, for instance, for a common man like me, how much do you think it is?

Arvind Subramanian: We calculate that in our Economic Survey. I think it depends upon what numbers and estimates. I think it is 8 to 10,000 dollars, I mean 8,000 to 10,000 rupees per person, per year. I think it depends upon what it is that you want to provide. I think that number comes from the poorest person. If you get him above the poverty line and that amount you give to everyone, that amount is that number.

If every Indian citizen is given a certain amount of cash, unconditionally, it gives him the freedom to buy anything he wants and this would help to cut down on subsidies on cooking gas, fertilisers, food subsidy. If we can use JAM (Jan Dhan, Aadhaar and Mobile) then the logistics of UBI can be taken care of.

Leadership Session with Commando Training Specialists

'Keep innovating, create energy to overcome greater obstacles'

Mysuru, Sept. 11 - "I faced a lot of obstacles while training more than 15,000 elite Indian forces for the past 20 years. But I managed to overcome it," said Seema Rao, India's first and the only woman commando trainer.

She was speaking at 'Leadership and Management Lessons from Armed Forces by Dr. Seema Rao and Major Deepak Rao' that was organised by CII-Yi Mysuru Chapter in association with Namma Mysuru Foundation at B.N. Bahadur Institute of Management Sciences in city recently.

She briefed about her stint as trainer along with her husband Major Deepak Rao. Even after endless troubles in her life, she chose to never give up. Even when she and her husband were facing monetary issues they never started charging money for their training.

Her training demanded travelling to some of the riskiest areas and because of her work commitments she even had to miss her father's funeral. She has trained many units including BSF, Navy, ITBP, NSG Black Cat Commandos and several other academies.

"My father was a freedom fighter and he used to tell us how the people fought for the freedom. After getting inspired with him, I also decided to do a bit for my country. Though initially during my school days I was scary and weak, later on I developed confidence. When I was 16, I met Deepak who taught me martial arts," she said.

In a world where a girl child is aborted or killed after the birth, the couple adopted a girl child. Seema Rao is also one of the rarest people in the world who have mastered the art of Jeet Kune Do (martial art founded by Bruce Lee in 1967) and she further got authorised to teach the same.

"All of sudden when my husband told to shoot an apple which was kept on his head, I did not know what to do but he instilled confidence in me and I was bang on target," she recollected.

In her advice to the audience, Seema Rao said, "Don't just blindly jump or get into something, think a little bit and go ahead. Keep improvising and don't be happy wherever you are, keep innovating. Nothing is ever lost in trying, but it's sad if you don't even try. Open your mind there will be many obstacles at that time, greater the obstacles, create energy in you."

Arjun Ranga, Chairman, CII Mysuru, also spoke. Ravi Shankar, Co-Chair, Yi Mysuru Chapter, Dr. R. Mahesh, Chairman, B.N. Bahadur Institute of Management Sciences, Maj. Deepak Rao and S.K. Dinesh, President, Namma Mysuru Foundation, were on the dais.

"Should we aspire to be like China"

SOM: As a CEA, you walk the thin line. How much can you criticise the government and its policies?

Arvind Subramanian: I think as CEA I have the extraordinary privilege of being able to provide inputs on policy internally, which is a privilege very few people have. It is true that in order to get that privilege one has certain responsibilities in terms of what is that one can and should say externally. Hence, a CEA has to assess very carefully how to balance that extraordinary privilege internally. It is a case by case scenario. You just have to play that by the ear.

SOM: Is the economy of the country in deep hole as the Opposition claims?

Arvind Subramanian: Oh, not at all. If you read the latest survey, there is a lot of optimism on Structural Reforms, GST, Air India, rationalisation of energy subsidies, new rules to address the bad assets in the banking system under the bankruptcy code, these are all very positive things. On the other side we said in the Economic Survey that there are some deflationary developments and growth has decelerated and we need to do all that we can to get growth back, up again. But to say that the country is in deep hole thing is a great exaggeration.

SOM: Renewable energy like solar and wind are the buzzwords today. But you are for coal as a major fuel. What are your thoughts on this?

Arvind Subramanian: I just delivered the Sixteenth Darbari Seth Memorial Lecture on August 17 on the topic 'Renewables versus Fossil Fuels: An Indian reassessment of electricity generation.' I think two or three big things that follow is, if you look at social costs of renewables and coal, it seems to my reading and the evidence is that social costs of renewables are higher than coal and, therefore, there is window to ramping up coal production and thermal power generation. Also it seems to me that if the social cost of what I am saying, then the question does arise why are we subsidising renewables on the one hand that displaces thermal power, creates NPAs and so on for which we have to pick up the tab that creates a double burden on the government. Shouldn't we think about this? So we have to think about coal and thermal power jointly, not separately.

SOM: What is the effect of demonetisation and GST on the country?

Arvind Subramanian: I think you should read the Survey. We have done a very careful analysis on what could be the long term benefits and short term cost. You see in terms of cash in the economy, it has come down by 20 per cent. Digitalisation has picked up across the board, tax-payers have increased possibly because of demonetisation. We also see certain short term impact, especially on the informal sector.

We have done a new analysis which shows that demonetisation did lead to an increase in demand for MNREGA in the poorer States by about 25 to 30 per cent. So as we had said in the survey done in February, there are potential long term benefits and short term costs and it is playing out almost in the way we had analysed in Volume 1 in February. You should read the Survey which is publicly available on the website.

SOM: But were you aware of demonetisation?

Arvind Subramanian: (Smiles wryly) I keep getting asked that question. But that is something; I think it is not an interesting question. That is for the historians, yeah, that is for the historians...

KSOU recognition still a mirage

Ratna Prabha Prof.Shivalingaiah

Mysuru, Sept. 11 (RK&NNN)- There are conflicting signals for the much-harried students of Karnataka State Open University (KSOU) even as Chief Minister Siddharamaiah blamed the previous Vice-Chancellors (VCs) for the mess and Additional Chief Secretary Ratna Prabha tweeted yesterday that the recognition to the Open University would be delayed and there was every possibility of it not getting recognition this year.

Meanwhile, KSOU VC Prof. D. Shivalinagaiah, speaking to Star of Mysore here this morning, expressed confidence that they would get the recognition this year itself.

"On Feb. 6, this year four of us from the University had taken all the documents weighing 90-kg to University Grants Commission (UGC) Office. Eight months have passed. They should have given us a reply by now. We are preparing for the new rules and regulations imposed by the UGC. Hence, we are confident of still getting recognition for the current 2017-18 year," said Prof. Shivalingaiah and added "the recognition will be only for non-technical courses and not the technical ones."

However, if one goes by the tweet of the Additional Chief Secretary Ratna Prabha, all hopes for the thousands of students who have been waiting for their degree certificates will be dashed and their future in doldrums. Even those who are waiting to write the exams in the current year are directionless.

She has tweeted that only if the new rules are implemented will the KSOU get recognition. Hence, it is quite doubtful that it would get it this year. And she has added that if it does not get recognition this year, then no one can do anything about it.

KSOU future bleak

Meanwhile, a source in the KSOU, speaking to Star of Mysore on condition of anonymity, presented a bleak picture for the students and the staff of KSOU. "Income Tax and Sales Tax has not been paid for years. If the Court orders that Rs. 2 lakh should be paid for each student, then KSOU will be left with no money this year itself," he said.

The source revealed that for many years there is shortage of teaching staff in the University. UGC guidelines say that for every subject there should be one Professor and two Associate Professors. This has not been followed.

At present, there are 600 staff and nearly 40,000 students who will all be put to extreme hardship if the recognition is delayed. "It is a sad spectacle to see the intelligent students who have passed various competitive exams coming to us for the degree certificates, only to find that they are worthless as the courses have been de-recognised from 2012-13 itself. And if this situation continues, the Open University is likely to be closed as there will be no money for anything," said the source.

Asked about the Bridge Courses offered by KSOU for the students to improve their standards before they take up regular courses, he said that the Bridge Course Certificates were equivalent to SSLC and PUC pass Certificates and as a result many had applied for the posts of drivers, conductors, cooks and other jobs. Even they have no hope to get jobs.

MP Pratap Simha reacts

MP Pratap Simha, after attending the Airport Advisory Committee meeting at the Mysuru Airport, reacting to a question on KSOU, told the media today that he was making all efforts to see that the Varsity gets recognition once again. "I had taken the then VC Prof. M.G. Krishnan and later the current VC Prof. Shivalinagaih to Delhi to meet the UGC officials. However, the issue is regarding various violations and added to that is the fake marks card racket that is escalating the problems," he said.

"It is not enough if the Chief Minister just writes to the UGC and sits back. We should all come together, go and meet the HRD Minister Prakash Javadekar and try to resolve the issue. I think by next academic year the problem can be resolved," he hoped.

Minister R. Roshan Baig is seen inspecting the works in progress near Akashavani in Yadavagiri this morning as Mayor M.J. Ravikumar, former Mayor Ayub Khan, MCC Commissioner G. Jagadeesha and others look on.

Mysuru, Sept. 11 (MTY&KS) - Minister for Urban Development, Haj and Wakf R. Roshan Baig this morning inspected various developmental works being undertaken in city.

The works include asphalting the 2.1 km stretch, laying of inter-locking tiles and developing bicycle lane. While the road asphalting works has been taken up at a cost of Rs. 1.52 crore, the footpath works and bicycle lane have been taken up at a cost of Rs. 2.48 lakh.

The Minister, after the inspection, asked the officials to speed up the works as Dasara festival is round the corner besides asking them to maintain quality.

When SOM pointed out to numerous potholes on the main roads in city, Minister Roshan Baig said that the issue has come to his notice. He said that he has instructed the officials to complete the pothole filling works at the earliest without giving reasons of rains.

When the Minister was shown trees covered with concrete without allowing space for rain water to flow to the roots, he took the MCC Engineer to task and asked him to get the concrete removed and facilitate rain water to flow to the roots of trees across the city.

He later inspected works undertaken on JLB Road and other places before proceeding to Tilaknagar to lay the foundation for iron fencing of Eidgah Maidan.

KRS water release to canals 15 days in a month: CM

Mysuru, Sept. 11(RK&NNN)- Chief Minister Siddharamaiah countered the media when he was asked the status regarding the pay scale for State Government employees.

To a pointed question by a television channel, he said, "Do you know the reason why it is delayed? You do not do your homework properly and ask questions. A committee has been formed to look into it. The Centre takes 10 years to review the pay scale and implement it, while the State Government implements the revised pay scales much earlier."

The CM, who was in a visibly upset mood, was addressing a press conference here this morning at his residence in Ramakrishnanagar, and said that in the last three years there was drought. However, the water level in KRS has reached 100 ft for the first time this year. Hence, water will be released into the canals once in 15 days for the farmers to take up farming work, he added.

On Modi speech

Asked about Prime Minister Narendra Modi's speech today, as part of the 125th anniversary of Swami Vivekananda's address at the World Parliament of Religions in Chicago and Pandit Deen Dayal Upadhyay's centenary celebrations, being made to listen compulsorily for schools and colleges, he replied that he had read it only in newspapers and hence could not comment.

To another question on the delay in appointment of Vice-Chancellor to University of Mysore, he refused to react.

Siddharamaiah said that he was going to meet his school classmate Rajalakshmi who was studying with him from fifth to seventh standard as she had been inviting him since a long time to visit her house.

There were nearly 70-80 people waiting outside his house with applications regarding CM fund, jobs, land and other issues. He received all of them. Later, he left for Bengaluru from Mysuru airport.

'Don't chant Vande Mataram if you spit paan'

Prime Minister Narendra Modi said Swami Vivekananda gave the concept of 'One Asia'. "He (Swami Vivekananda) said that the solutions to world's problems will come from Asia," Modi said. He said the youth of the country should be job-creators and not job-seekers. He also urged students to focus on cleanliness while campaigning for university elections. On Sunday, the PM, in a series of tweets, said the theme of his address will be "Young India, New India." He further added that the convention will take place on the same day Swami Vivekananda delivered his Chicago address in 1893.

Cheers, protest mark Modi address in city: Loud cheers and protests marked the Prime Minister Modi's speech at Senate Hall in Manasagangothri, here this morning. A large LED screen(12ftX24ft) was placed on the dais as hundreds of students gathered in the Hall to listen to the address of the Prime Minister. Meanwhile, a few teachers including Prof. C. Sarvamangala, Prof. Roopa Rao, activist P. Mallesh staged a protest outside the hall expressing their ire at the forceful imposition on the part of the University of Mysore to listen to the PM's speech.

They charged that in a free, secular country, it was not right on the part of University of Mysore Registrar to issue a circular to Chairmen and Directors of all the Departments and Principals coming under the University to compulsorily attend the live telecast of PM Modi's speech at Senate Bhavan, following the direction of Secretary for University Grants Commission (UGC).

However, the atmosphere inside the Senate Hall was charged as the students whistled loudly when the Prime Minister began his address. They listened with rapt attention for over an hour as the PM eulogised Swami Vivekananda and Deen Dayal Upadhyaya's contributions to the nation.

"It was an inspiring speech by our Prime Minister Modi today. By listening to him speak about Swami Vivekananda, we feel that we should also contribute to the nation," said Rekha, Aditya and a few other students.

MP Pratap Simha reacts: MP Pratap Simha reacting to the protest by a section of students and teachers at Manasagangothri, said that the Chief Minister had no idea about what Hindutva stood for and a few misguided students and teachers protesting against the Prime Minister's address was the height of ignorance.

Vaastu-Feng Shui & Bio-energetics

Prosperous Home Designs

One of the primary concepts of Feng Shui interior design is energy — often referred to as Chi. Feng Shui interior design attempts to direct, retain, and channel this energy in a way that is most beneficial to those using the room. This can be done by the placement of objects at different compass locations or by using furniture made of specific types of material.

Buildings alter the flow of such Chi due to their shape, openings and the materials they are made of. The orientation of a building to the sun and planets will determine the kind of Chi that enters it and it has been found that energy most easily moves through doors when compared to windows and other apertures.

Hence, proper alignment, directions are extremely important when it comes to Feng Shui design and layout. Feng Shui has eight basic directions, four that are considered primary and four that are secondary further sub divided into three parts which actually gives 24 directions as per the special Feng Shui compass that facilitates a perfect alignment, positioning and analysis of the property.

This in turn helps in deciding the layout, room positioning and décor including placement of fixtures, furnishings, furniture and adapting the right colours pertain to the specific sectors.

The principles of Feng Shui explain the interaction of people with their environment. Like the Laws of Physics, they govern every aspect of human life from the surfaces and seemingly trivial features of our living space to our inner most aims and motivations and, ultimately, our physical and mental well-being.

Focus on the entrance to your home or building to welcome good Chi; Place a bamboo plant near your front door, it will attract good Chi and financial security.

Feng Shui founded on the same lines as oriental medicine, propagates the basic idea that currents of energy travelling through the universe and linked to both space and time help to determine the context in which we live our lives maximizing the potential for success at work and home.

It is said that, a large portion of the future occupant's fate can be decided by the way the building is placed on a piece of land. Using time-tested mathematical formulas based on the date and how a structure is to be placed on a piece of land, one could build a home that ushers success, prosperity, good health, and a happy family life.

• Surround your home with natural rocks and if few rocks are placed at the four corners of the property they signify strong and stable earth Chi.

• The design and adaptation of Feng Shui should always be done having the people who will be in it in mind as the occupants comfort must be of the highest priority.

• Focus on the entrance to your home or building to welcome good energy (Chi) and avoid clutter in this area, place a bamboo plant near your front door, it will attract good energy and financial security into your home.

• To activate wealth luck, place a purple coloured smooth crystal ball or that of amethyst at Southeast.

'Bhava Sangeeta'

by Anagha and Apoorva

M.N. Anagha and Sai Apporva, accompanied by Vid. Chethan on violin and Vid. Shyam on mridanga, presenting a musical concert at Nadavidyalaya on Sept. 1.

Mysuru, well-known for its rich cultural and traditional values, is also rich with immense treasure of music in all forms. The ambience of music whether Karnatak or Hindustani is simply amazing and breezes off all the negatives and drives the listener to the ocean of peace. And one such way of connecting the Supreme is done by Nadavidyalaya Academy of Music & Dance through its monthly concert programmes in association with the Department of Kannada and Culture, Bengaluru.

Providing the young talents a platform to showcase their talents in the music stream, the sixth month concert was organised at Nadavidyalaya on Sept. 1 by the disciples of Guru Vid. M.S. Naveen — M.N. Anagha and Sai Apporva, who presented the 'Maarga Sangeetha' concert for two hours with their musical voices.

The duo began with the 'Varna' in Darbar raga and taala Adi wherein the lyrics blend perfectly and beautifully with the swaras. It was then followed by invocation of Vighnanivaraka Lord Ganapati's kruti 'Vinayaka ninnu' in Hamsadhwani raga and Adi taala. The sapta swaras act as a boat, a medium which helps to cross the ocean to reach the supreme. "Paalinchu kaamakshi" is one such vilambakaala kruti that makes way for manodharma in kalpanaswaras. It is a beautiful composition by Shyamashastri in Madhyamaavati raga and Adi taala. The concert continued with the famous work of Saint Tyagaraja "Shambo mahadeva" in Kamavardini raga set to Rupaka taala wherein the Aalapana was done by Anagha and Kalpanaswara by Sai Apoorva.

The presentation continued with one of the gems of Karnatak music the "Pancharatna Kruti" — Sadhinchane which is composed by one of the profound Trimurtis Nadabrahma Tyagaraja in raga Aarabhi and Adi taala. The concert proceeded with the "Devaranama" which acts as a path to connect to the divine through bhakti.

The devaranama highlights the social values, morals and virtues through simple compositions by Haridasas. One such Daasara Pada is "Ittange iruvenu Hariye," a composition by Sripadaraja which was sung by Sai Apoorva in raga Mayamalavagowla set to Khandaeka taala where the human morality was the emphasis of her rich rendering. It was then followed by another famous devaranama "Esha ninna charana bhajane," a composition by Saint Kanakadasa that was sung by Anagha with filled bhakti in Vasanti raga and Roopaka taala and took the audience to bhavasamadhi.

The musical concert was concluded by a rhythmic piece of music — Tillana, a wonderful composition of King Swatitirunal that was rendered beautifully by the duo in Dhanashri raga set to Adi taala.

The singers were accompanied by Vid. Chethan on violin and Vid. Shyam on mridanga.

The swarasanje was undoubtedly a treat to rasikas who witnessed the musical concert. The young talents were appreciated by the audience with a great applause for their hardwork and presentation. Nadavidyalaya has given lot of opportunities for such young and enthusiastic talents and has stood as a backbone to all the upcoming artists in the field of music and dance.

ABOUT CHETTINADU ART

Chettiar or Chetti is a title used by various mercantile, agricultural and land owning castes in South India, especially in the States of Tamil Nadu. Chettinadu is the home of Nattukottai Chettiars (Nagarathar), a prosperous banking and oil business community residing in the region of Chettinadu in two districts of Sivaganga and Pudukottai of Tamil Nadu.

Karaikudi is known as capital of Chettinadu which includes several villages. The place is often publicised as a temple town in the region which comprises mainly in Karaikudi and a cluster of 96 surrounding villages. But in course of time, the number of villages have been reduced to 73 villages.

The community is organised around 9 clan temples, each member of the Chettiar community belongs to a clan and each clan has its own temple. They have Ayyanar shrines and Mariamman temples.

Annual convention of Kodavas held in Dallas

Dallas, Sept. 11- Kodavas of United States of America organised the annual Convention of Kodavas in Grapevine, Dallas on Sept. 2 and 3 on the occasion of Kodava festival Kailpoldh.

The Dallas Kodavas are represented by approximately 25 families who have elected to blend Eastern and Western cultures by presenting this year's convention with a unique Texan flair. This was the largest convention ever in North America with over 377 people from all parts of USA and Canada attending. The presence of some visiting parents from India added to the charm.

Kodavas of Dallas did a wonderful job in arranging this event and put up a truly enjoyable and traditional show. The pre-convention on Sept. 2 had the local cowboy theme while the main event on Sept. 3 was truly traditional.

Attention to little details was impressive with every table having vases with "thok poo" (the special flowers used to worship arms during Kailpoldh) shipped from India and table clothes that had the colours of 'Kuppiya Chele' (the traditional dress of Kodava men).

The booths set up to showcase Kodava festivals were impeccable. The sight of Kodava women in traditional sari and jewellery and men in 'Kuppiya Chele' and the more traditional vastra (traditional cloth worn on the head) instead of the ready-made 'mande thuni' (headgear) was a sight to behold.

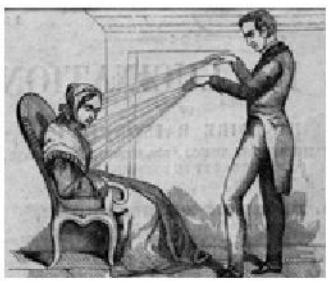
The dances performed by the hosts like 'Pareyakali' and the skits performed on some of the unique rituals of Kodavas like 'bale kettho', 'Ganga Pooja', 'batte thadpo' were educative besides being entertaining. Hand-rolled 'Kadumbutt', 'Pandi curry' and 'koot curry' added the Kodava flavour to the exotic local Tex Mex cuisine. In the end, participants danced to the tunes of Kodava Valaga.

WORD OF THE DAY

Mesmerism



Pronunciation: mez-muh-riz-uh m, mes-
Meaning: A compelling attraction; fascination; hypnotism
Origin: Mesmerism is an eponym formed on the basis of Austrian physician Friedrich Anton Mesmer, who popularised the notion of inducing a hypnotic state by animal magnetism. It entered English in the late 1700s.

THE ODD WORD

Uniped

A person or animal with only one foot or leg.

PHRASE OF THE DAY

Hard pillow to swallow

Meaning: Something that is hard to accept.

Example: It was a hard pill for Jason to swallow when he realised his body's build was no longer as slender as it was in his twenties.
Origin: In the later half of the 17th century, it appears this idiom first started out simply as "a pill to swallow," and then afterwards the adjectives "hard" and "bitter" were added to the front of it. For example, an English poet from the 17th century, John Dryden, published a work of his in 1668 called Essay of Dramatic Peosy. He wrote down the expression without those adjectives: "We cannot read a verse of Cleveland's without making a face at it, as if every word were a Pill to swallow: he gives us many times a hard Nut to break our Teeth, without a Kernal for our pains." Later, the word 'bitter' was added to the idiom. The earliest example of this is from a French historian named Mr. Rapin Thoyras. In one of his written works from 1736, it reads: "This event, which happened the 7th of September, N.S. was immediately follow'd by the relieving of time after, with the total expulsion of the French out of all Italy; a bitter pill to swallow." An example can be seen in the Morning Journal newspaper from 1829, which reads: "That they will prove a hard pill for Turkey to swallow is to be expected, unless, indeed, some decided friend has recently sprung up, who will not allow Turkey to be so crippled as to make her fall an easy prey next time she is attacked."
